An Ode to the Norden Distinguished Teacher

*He has a great sense of humor and commitment to teaching
 He is patient and kind, his knowledge far-reaching
 But this list of qualities is only the start
 What makes him unique? What sets him apart?
 He is not a clinician, but what he teaches is relevant
 Whether you're treating a dog, a horse, or an elephant
 He has his own lab, and in the classroom he excels
 He enjoys the students, and we enjoy him as well
 In lecture, his diagrams are crucial to his talk
 He draws, he re-draws, he uses lots of chalk
 He encourages thoughtful inquiry and clinical investigation
 Whether it's tracking down a case or making a presentation
 His approach to teaching is a straightforward attack
 His manner is easy, good-natured, laid-back
 His open personality explains how it came to pass
 That one morning in lecture he stood before the class
 Looking a bit painful and stooped, but as always quite dapper
 As he explained he'd thrown his back out, standing up from the crapper
 As a distinguished teacher he makes the mark
 I'm proud to introduce Dr. Wayne S. Schwark*

Top 5 rejected senior seminar topics

5. The underlying corporate conspiracy behind the discontinuation of Purina cat litter coupon distribution - Kurt Venator
4. Use of AV equipment in lecture halls: an idiot's guide for faculty and staff - Geof Grocock
3. The positive correlation between problem based learning and homicidal behavior in veterinary students - Ed Reiller
2. Avian sex determination via cloacal flavor - Steve Schnee
1. Colic in horses: Who the hell cares? - Mike Fietz

Block I:

A horse presents with a laceration on its right forelimb. Physical examination reveals a left sided heart murmur (grade II/VI). In five words or fewer, explain the development of the heart in detail. Include all possible vascular malformations.

Block II:

A horse presents with a laceration on its right forelimb. Using your knowledge of wound healing, explain how you can make a transgenic pig with exocrine pancreatic insufficiency knocked out. Include a detailed explanation of PCR and its application in this case. Be sure to include as many growth factors as possible (deductions will be made for using abbreviations).

Block III:

A horse presents with a laceration on its right forelimb. Dr. Cooper tells you that you are wrong.

Block IV:

A horse presents with a laceration on its right forelimb. It appears to be infected. List all of the cytokines that are involved in immunology (no partial credit).

Block VII:

A horse presents with a laceration on its right forelimb. With your assigned group, make a video exemplifying diversity within the school and the profession. One student should play the part of the horse, another the part of the laceration. Relate this to interstate transport of poultry.

5. This textbook is required
4. Concept mapping is useful in the learning process
3. There are no stupid questions
2. Who your tutor makes no difference in what you learn
1. Don't worry about this, it won't be on the exam

Top Ten Big Fat Lies Heard in Clinics:

10. We round at 5:00 sharp
9. No one ever gets called in for a pathology emergency
8. The colic will be here in half an hour
7. The emergency road pass is intended to be sure that you get to go home
6. You will not be responsible for the eights on this case; it'll be transferred back to medicine after the surgery
5. T1s and T2s are an integral part of your education
4. Student safety is the number one concern on ambulatory
3. Client visits and discharges will be scheduled at the student's convenience
2. This horse is going home tomorrow
1. This horse is going home today

Top 5 ways to fail clinics:

1. Reply to Dr. Alcaraz with, "What gray book?"
2. Ask anesthesia when your patient will be induced
3. Impress Dr. Kern with your tonopen juggling skills
4. Ask pharmacy when your meds will be ready
5. Ask Dr. Guard what type of cow this is

Ellie

1988-2002

Ellie was a real friend to all of us who worked with her. She probably had more human friends than any other cow - About 14 years of 80 students a class makes over 1100 who have enjoyed her placid personality and the opportunity to learn from her. She will long be remembered and Stella has mighty big hooves to fill

Advice from a Black Dog

Don't forget the mountains.
Feel the sun and rain on your body.
Give the world your love; that's all there is.
Watch the moon, watch the grass, watch everything.
Bark when necessary to protect your loved ones.
Sleep deep...dream...never bite.
Share your joy, scratch your fleas.
Don't waste time when pleasure awaits.
Trust the earth under your feet.
Take walks, disobey rules, find soft beds.
Have adventures, grab a stick whenever necessary.
Love. Love all the people, but most of all your own.
Get dirty. Be yourself.
Stay true to all that is true.
Be wise in your heart.
Don't eat too much poop.
Never let your tail drag in the dirt.
Be yourself.

HOLLY BARTHOLF

SUSAN BARTLETT

"We need another and a wiser and perhaps a more mystical concept of animals.... In a world older and more complete than ours they move finished and complete, gifted with extensions of the senses we have lost or never attained, living by voices we shall never hear. They are not brethren, they are not underlings; they are other nations, caught with ourselves in the net of life and time, fellow prisoners of the splendour and travail of the earth." - Henry Beston, The Outermost House

ELIZABETH BERLINER

"Sooner or later we all discover the important moments in life are not the advertised ones, not the birthdays, the graduations, the weddings, not the great goals achieved. The real milestones are less prepossessing. They come to the door of memory unannounced, stray dogs that amble in, sniff around a bit and simply never leave. Our lives are measured by these" --Susan B. Anthony

To my parents, Thank you - none of this could have been possible without the both of you. To the rest of my family, especially Patty, Jerry, and Lisa, you have been an endless source of support, love, and encouragement. To my loved ones who could not be here for the realization of my dream, I know you are looking down and smiling with pride. Missy, Little Miller, and Phoebe, my four-legged kids, you have always reminded me what all my hard work was for. To my friends, colleagues and veterinarians of the class of 2003, it has been a pleasure to have learned and worked with you all for the past four years. Good luck in all that you do. May you find happiness and an endless passion for whatever path in life you find yourself on.

In what seems like a blink of an eye, our loving and caring little girl has grown up to achieve her dream. Starting with Pinky Dog, no animal, stuffed or alive, was unworthy of Cathy's dedication, devotion, and love. Determination kept her mastering equestrian skills from Limerick through Laddie and countless others. Merit is now the fortunate one to share her attention with Max, Annabelle, two ferrets, and a gerbil. Good luck in all your endeavors. We are so very proud of you.

All our love,
Mom and Dad

Felicitaciones Chiquita!

From being a fluff-cheeked cutie to a delightful caring doctor-of-all-species (a REAL doctor!), we have seen you develop solidly, responsibly, and (implausibly), almost always happy but with the occasional "cara de zanahoria."

We know you will spend your life as you have always lived it, touching all the buttons, setting off the alarms, perennially on the move, intelligent, curious, perceptive, sensitive, honest, caring.

Your parent's delight and pride!
Have a happy life. We love you to pieces.

FROM THE FAMILY OF
DR. JOHN V. DE BIASIO...

John,

There is no greater challenge than to accomplish your own dreams; no greater satisfaction than to achieve them. We have been there for your dreaming, we have seen the hard work and the challenges you have had to overcome, and now with great admiration we are here to be with you as you reach fulfillment.

Your dream and your accomplishment are noble ones. Albert Einstein said...

"Our task must be to free ourselves...by widening our circle of compassion to embrace all living creatures, and the whole of nature and its beauty."

You have taken this to heart and are well on the road to meeting it. Cherish your accomplishment and continue to strive to achieve your dreams.

Love,
Mom and Dad

FROM THE FAMILY OF
DR. JANIS C. KOHLER...

We are all extremely proud of your accomplishments! Hopefully that "golden" cloud will follow you wherever you go!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Sam,
Eric, and Lori
